TOLD IN THE GREENROOM.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN THE WORLD OF THEATRICALS.

Tenor Carlton to Produce "The Brigands" at the Grand Opera-House—Mansfield Will Arrive Here Sunday Night—Miss Eastlake the Cynosure of Pedestrians—Cora Tinnie and Her Christmas Work.

Carlton, the tenor, and head of the Carlton Opera Company, is going to do what appears to be rather a daring thing next month. He will bring his company to the Grand Opera-House and will present "The Brigands," the production that made such a great success at the Casino. There will possibly be some legal objections from the Grand Opera-House, however, claims that "The Brigands" is free to everybody, from the fact of its publication in England. He has presented the opera on the road and has met with no interference. In any case, however, Mr. Aronson would probably experience no very profound alarm at the Grand Opera-House production. A local manager who could excel the Grand Opera-House representation would be a wonder, and comparisons are always "odorous."

Richard Mansfield and his company will arrive in the city Sunday night, and will "lay off" to put it vulgarly—until the opening at the Grand Opera-House. Mansfield's company is the one that is the most representative, as in the city yesterday. The actor will probably present "The Brigands" during his New York engagement, though of course he will open with his elaborate production of "The Boatswain's Mate." "The Boatswain's Mate" is another of those "ghosts," which will probably be presented in the engagement, which will last for six weeks.

Miss Eastlake, as she took a matutinal walk on Broadway yesterday, was gazed at curiously by the little subterfuges and others. She wore a long black kimono with fur and reaching to her feet, while a rather too diminutive sailor hat was trimmed.

Miss Gabrielle du Saul, in spite of a few difficulties she had with Miss Kate Orlan, has now secured the right to play "Bootsie's Baby" in the South and West. She will be accompanied by Frederick Sidney, Mr. Gishko and Edwin Roy for the cast. She herself will play the part of Helen Grace.

Miss Cora Tinnie, of "The Seven Ages," was out for charity yesterday, visiting the various Christmas Tree Funds. "I am being very hard," she said, "to induce them to subscribe. They don't hesitate at all. By the way, I am going to the Committee for the Christmas Tree. Is it not terrible? Everybody is looking me about it. They've made me Mrs. Cora Tinnie. They've made Mrs. Sol Smith. Miss Smith."

Meers, Rice and Dixey claim that the audience present at the Strand Theatre, Thursday night was the largest that the theatre has ever had. The next in point of size was attended by the London City Company, but "The Seven Ages" beat this by 400 in spite of the fact that the English burlesque people charged $1.50 for the five rows in the balcony, while the present occupants ask that price for the first two rows only.

Edmund Mortimer, author of "The Shanty Queen," which came back to New York after a brief tour, is now in the city. He is now in Hartford with Miss Frankie Kemble in the title role. The piece was highly praised. People wouldn't tolerate such an innovation, and very rightly, too. Then a quartet was sung to the music of the audience, and the quartet was discharged as soon as its members left the stage. I wasn't responsible for all these introductions. The backer of the piece still has great faith in it; so has Miss Kemble; so have I. It is a high and lofty effort; it is a pleasant entertainment.

Dr. Reinhardt is charged with shooting quail out of season. One misguided friend tried to screen him by saying he thought the beast was a woodcock. Dr. Reinhardt would sooner pay the fine than be thought unable to tell a quail from a woodcock.

Bologna sausage is one of those things that no man knows anything about. Now it comes out that a large manufacturer of the dainty excellent tastes them of horseflesh. Fancy food turned into a Bologna!

A man had a card on his person stating that his name was Rude, "in case of accident." What was his name if nothing befell him?

Four men were kept in jail two months waiting for a fellow who had been knocked down to get well enough to identify them. Then the man said they weren't the ones. Next time the men will send their photographs to him as soon as arrested.

Now there comes a suspicious despatch mentioning in the same breath champagne and Emma Pasha's fall from a balcony. Emma was badly broken up.

Whiskey is quoted at $20 a gallon in Alaska. A drunken man there is regarded with the respectful homage due to wealth.

A man was discovered lately with five complete suits on his person. Berry Wall is respectfully asked to take a pointer.

Wednesday boys out for frolic gathered in a harem, after evicting the feathered tenants. That they took the house and left the hens proved that the boys are not as black as they might be.

The great Sullivan has consented to earn his living for a week by practicing his profession. He gets $2,000 for his accommodating ways. John can make more with his fists than with his brain.

A woman got a telegram sent by another woman to her husband. Sooner than have the young woman disappointed, she went herself to the train. The young woman is feeling very sore now, and is wondering how that woman's husband ever dared to misbelieve.

Athletes in repose.

F. Brantling, of the Chicago football team, who plays full-back with such effectiveness, was formerly a member of the Princeton football eleven. He punts and runs very cleverly.

Charles O. Perry, who is a candidate for the position of First Lieutenant of the Manhattan Athletic Club, is one of the best known members of that very successful athletic organization.

G. A. Avery, of the Manhattan, is probably one of the most skillful times in the world. He is also an unbroken champion in all athletic matters.

Full back Tripp, of the Columbia College football team, ought to develop into a great player. His skills was a credit to the team in all the games in which he played last year.

Europe's chapter of accidents yesterday showed that we have not a monopoly in that sort of thing. Well, there is comfort in companionship in misery.

They do say that Tom Reed has gained a pound or two since he was hoisted to the Speaker's chair. It is something Tom has no need of.

THE EVENING WORLD'S CAPTAIN AGAIN LEADS "The Evening World" Contest.

Second Battery's Captain Again Leads "The Evening World" Contest.

Lieut. Col. Moran Hanging On to Second Position Desperately.

Major Kipp and Lieut. Crolius Indulge in Wonderful Spurts.

Against the Irrepressible Capt. Wilson, of the Second Battery, jumps to the front in the Evening World's National Guard election, this time with a grand total of 19,578. Lieut. Col. Moran is second with his total increased to 15,779.

Major Kipp, of the Seventh Regiment, strides promptly into third place with 13,827, while Lieut. Crolius, of Co. F, Thirtieth Regiment, holds fourth, with 11,008 to his credit.

Dan McGinty, Submarine General, received one vote yesterday, but he cables that it is too wet where he is, should he win the prize, to properly keep such an elegant sword, and therefore he must decline to be a candidate.

The sword which the successful candidate will receive is to be a most magnificent affair. In the first place, it is to be made upon an entirely new design, richly ornamented, and of the best material to be obtained.

The blade will be of the finest Damascus steel. The handle and guard will be of brass of special design, enriched and hand-chased, as well as the scabbard upon the scabbard, which will be either of shark-skin or of embossed metal, silver-plated and burnished, the design depending on the choice of the officer receiving it.

The blade will also depend upon the rank of the winner. If he is a lieutenant it will be straight, and if a staff officer it will be a sword and curved in form.

A medalion mounting of burnished and hand-chased metal, upon the upper part of the scabbard will be inscribed with the name of the winner, with his rank and regiment.

The sword will be manufactured by R. M. Whitlock, of 60 Fourth avenue, the well-known maker of military equipments, and this announcement of itself guarantees the best of material and workmanship.

Owing to the urgent request of members of different companies from the west and north of this city and New Jersey, it has been decided to continue the contest beyond Dec. 10, the time originally fixed for closing. Due notice will be given of the date when the contest ends.

This extension of time will give parties at a distance plenty of time to get in their ballots, which they could not otherwise do on account of the delay in getting copies of the paper. If you have not already done so, get out and vote. The Evening World, properly filled, to the Evening World.

BOXERS AND BALL CRANKS.

BROTHERHOOD PLAYERS AWAITING THE NATIONAL LEAGUE'S ONSLAUGHT.

Hostilities Will Not Be Opened Till After the Holidays—Has Kelly Signed a Contract—Jem Mace to Spar Mitchell—The McAuliffe-Daly Match a Draw.

Both the National Baseball League and the Players' League will rest on their arms until January, when the feud will be warm indeed. Both organizations are in the field to stay and it will be a fight to the death. Some three weeks remain for both parties to complete their plans for the campaign, and they will improve the time to the utmost.

The field of battle is to be the law courts. The National League will be the attacking party, and will make its onslaught on what it deems the weakest part of the Players' League line, the portion of the National contracts covered by the reserve rule.

It seems rather strange that Kelly should be bustling about the country signing Brotherhood players if, as the National League people claim, he had not signed a Players' League contract himself. The reserve rule, which Kelly signed with the Brotherhood is a bitter pill for the latter. How long Clarkson will hold out against the persuasive eloquence of the Brotherhood stars is problematical. Clarkson expresses fear as to the new organization's stability. He would, however, rather see the Players' League have yet another hit.

It is probable that most of the former stars of the National League of 1890 will be found enrolled in the ranks of the Players' League when the season opens. The reserve rule, which the National League people claim they will benefit by, will, however, be a bitter pill for the latter.

AN ACTOR'S TROUBLES.

Mr. Dave Morrisey Tells How He Suffered with Catarrh, and How Dr. McCoy and Wildman Made a New Man of Him.

Mr. Dave Morrisey, the actor, is a partner on the stage of Dan Sherman. Everybody has seen or heard of Sherman and Morrisey. This week they are playing at the Central Theatre, Philadelphia. Next week they play at Kean's in Washington, and the following week they are booked for Kean's Theatre in Baltimore.

Mr. Morrisey's permanent address is 114 East 14th st. A reporter had a chat with Dave Morrisey the other day in this city. Mr. Morrisey said: "While playing in San Francisco about seven years ago I caught a heavy cold, and I didn't do anything for it, and it ran into catarrh. My head was always clogged up. I was always hawking up phlegm, and when I used to wake up in the morning I had a bad feeling. I felt tired and mean. Many a time when I went on the stage the audience little dreamed how miserable I felt. Eight weeks ago I went to Dr. McCoy and Wildman, of 5 East 42nd st. I felt as well as I could then, but I began to feel better, and the result of my eight weeks' treatment is that I am well and happy. I don't feel tired or mean any more in the morning, and I don't feel tired, that Mr. McCoy and Wildman have done a great deal of good. Their treatment of catarrh is certainly wonderful. I know lots of people in my profession who are suffering just as I used to. I tell you catarrh is a terrible thing."

DAVE MORRISSEY, 114 EAST 14TH ST.

For the last three months Dr. McCoy and Wildman will treat all cases of catarrh for $5 a month in order to demonstrate to the people that their treatment is the most thorough and successful. This includes all medicine.

How the Sufferer Can Detect the Coming of Trouble.

One of the most common and annoying effects of catarrh is a continual dripping in the back part of the throat, which is usually while lying down in the afternoon, but towards evening the nose becomes partially stopped, the voice gets a little husky, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night the patient finds that added to his other symptoms he cannot breathe through his nose, which has become entirely plugged up, the result of which is that he awakes, and in some cases the throat may feel a little sore or inflamed, and when he retires for the night
